The Pont du Gard is the tallest Roman bridge aqueduct in the world built by the Romans 2000 years ago in only 5 years.

A BRIEF HISTORY

This masterpiece of impressive architecture, classified as a World Heritage Site by UNESCO in 1985, has given the inhabitants of the city of Nîmes high-pressure running water for 5 centuries.

In a breathtaking natural setting, this stone colossus is one of the highest ancient bridges in the world.

YOUR VISIT

Travel back in time to the Roman times when you visit the Museum and the Cinema and enjoy a guided tour all the way to the top of the aqueduct.

A moment of pure emotion that will leave its mark on your trip to southern France.
